INTRODUCTION

This guide is an illustration of performance objectives and standards that have been written for six different kinds of jobs. As such, it is a supplement to the Supervisors' Performance Planning and Review Manual. It is for the use of supervisors, managers and employees who are responsible for evaluating employees' job performance or who must write performance objectives and standards for their own job.

The sample objectives and standards have been developed from a review of written job descriptions, some performance evaluation forms completed by Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribal (CS&KT) employees and other material as appropriate. The samples show what objectives and activities might look like for a particular job (or position). Of course an individual's job duties may be different than the example provided. In that case the example can be modified and only those parts that apply may be used. In any case, it is still going to be up to the individual supervisor or employee to determine how many performance standards or activities need to be written for each performance objective (see Chapter IV, page 6, of the Supervisors' Manual). And each writer must decide how best to describe the objectives and standards and whether they are appropriate or not.
